Learning how to run a classroom smoothly requires time and patience, and it is easy to feel overwhelmed by how much we educators must do to maintain a cohesive teaching environment. To address this concern, we wish to provide a collaborative and interactive space for all interested participants to share and discuss issues that they find salient in their own classrooms, such as how to pace lessons, differentiate instruction, and modify undesirable behaviors. By engaging in this conversation, participants will hopefully leave the workshop with greater confidence in their own classroom management skills.
